24:31 Moses had trained Joshua to be his successor, but Joshua and the elders of Israel failed to train their own successors, and to thoroughly ground new leaders in the faith of Israel. As a result, the next generation succumbed to Canaanite idolatry. God's people are always just one generation away from apostasy. Therefore, young people must be trained to walk in the fear of the Lord today so that they become the proper, godly leaders of tomorrow.

The Book of

JUDGES

"Judges" is the Hebrew term used to refer to those whom God raised up to lead His people during the period between the conquest of Canaan and the monarchy. There were fifteen judges during this period, but only thirteen are mentioned in the Book of Judges (the ministries of Eli and Samuel are recorded in 1 Samuel). Although these thirteen judges had a tremendous impact on the nation of Israel, none of them ruled over all of the twelve tribes. In fact, some of them were at work at the same time in different areas of the country. For this reason, the length of time that the judges ruled cannot be arrived at by simply adding the number of years that each judge ruled. The most commonly accepted figure for the time period of the judges is 350 years (see the note on Gen. 15:13–16).

The Book of Judges contains an introduction (chaps. 1; 2), narrative accounts of the judges who led the people (chaps. 3—16), and a conclusion which describes the social and spiritual state of the people (chaps. 17—21). The introduction and conclusion are not chronologically linked to the narrative accounts.

Samuel is considered the most likely one to have written the Book of Judges, and internal evidence points to its being written during his lifetime. It is inferred from the phrase, "in those days there was no king in Israel" (Judg. 17:6; 18:1; 19:1; 21:25), that at the time of the writing, there was a king. Thus, it is obvious that it was written after Saul took the throne. Also, one can be sure that this book was written before Solomon's reign because the Canaanites had not yet been driven out of Gezer (Judg. 1:29, cf. 1 Kgs. 9:16). Furthermore, it may be concluded that it was written before David conquered Jerusalem (Judg. 1:21, cf. 1 Chr. 11:4–7). That the book was written before the reign of David is also supported by the implication in the Book of Judges that Sidon, rather than Tyre, was still considered the capital of Phoenicia (Judg. 1:31; 3:3; 10:6; 18:28, cf. 2 Sam. 5:11).

The Book of Judges recounts the sad events of Israel's apostasy. It was common in Israel during the time of the judges for every man to do "that which was right in his own eyes" (Judg. 17:6; 21:25). God had to remind them again and again that He was the one true God, because they repeatedly indulged in the idolatry and immorality of the Canaanites among whom they lived. The main section of the book reflects a cycle from which Israel seemed unable to escape—Israel falls into apostasy, God sends an oppressor, Israel repents, God sends a deliverer, there is peace and prosperity, and then Israel falls away again. During the times of "rest" that Israel experienced, the Lord caused Israel's enemies to fight among themselves.

1:1 The phrase "asked the LORD" is found only in the books of Judges and Samuel. The civil ruler of Israel had the right to ask the high priest to consult the Urim and the Thummim for him (Num. 27:21). This was the means which God set up for the judges, and later the kings, to know His judgment on any particular matter.
1:8 The early history of the city of Jerusalem is not certain, because it was known by several different names during its history. Also, it is difficult to determine which name applied at what time. This city is called Salem in Psalm 76:2. Therefore, if the Salem mentioned in Genesis 14:18 is the same site, Melchizedek was one of its early kings. It did not become the capital of Israel until David drove out the Jebusites from the fortified southern hill known as Mount Zion (see the note on 2 Sam. 5:6–10), because members of the tribe of Benjamin and the Jebusites are said to have "inhabited Jerusalem" together (Judg. 1:21).

2:13 These Canaanite deities, Baal and Ashtaroth, remained a problem for Judah until the Babylonian Exile (two other Canaanite deities noted in Judges are Asherah [Judg. 3:7] and Dagon [Judg. 16:23]). Only the seventy years in captivity finally cured Israel of its idolatrous ways. Recent archaeological discoveries have helped to clarify the facts about the religion of Canaan in the days of the judges. Baal and Ashtaroth are the names of two individual gods in a much larger and complicated system of polytheism. Moreover, they were also community gods whose names differed from region to region. For instance, Baal was called Baal-Peor, Baal-Berith, and Baal-zebub (Num. 25:3; Judg. 8:33; 2 Kgs. 1:2). It is for this reason that Scripture describes Israel as serving "Baal" or "Baalim" ("im" is the Hebrew plural ending). Overall, the religion of the Canaanites was extremely corrupt. It was characterized by the practices of human sacrifice, ritual prostitution and homosexuality, and self mutilation. These religions taught that these practices were prevalent among their gods as well, so it is not surprising that the people became equally debased. The many gods were particularly connected with agriculture (the seasons, weather, and grain) and many of God's judgments against these people would ultimately discredit the supposed abilities of these Canaanite "gods" (1 Kgs. 18:20–40; Hos. 2:8–13; Amos 4:4–11).

6:36, 37 In humility, Gideon desired a tangible sign to reassure him of God's leading. God does not condemn Gideon, but graciously gives him repeated signs to confirm the divine call (vv. 36–40). These two signs involving the "fleece of wool" provided an increased assurance that it was God's supernatural working. Gideon, from that point on never wavered in his trust in God, even when God sent him into battle with only three hundred men. Because of his faith, Gideon is included among God's "heroes of faith" (Heb. 11:32).

7:5 There are two views in regard to the reason for God's choice of Gideon's men which are based on the events of this verse. Some scholars hold that the way the men drank the water served no real purpose as far as God was concerned. It was merely one final way that God used to reduce the number of men. Others believe that because some of the men knelt and scooped the water in their hands to drink it, they were more prepared for battle than those who lapped the water with their tongues like a dog, thus revealing themselves as easy targets for the enemy. Therefore, the latter ones were sent home as unfit for war.

Gideon Pursues the Escaping Kings

8 And the men of Ephraim said unto him, Why hast thou served us thus, that thou calledst us not, when thou wentest to fight with the Midianites? And they did chide with him sharply.

2 And he said unto them, What have I done now in*comparison*of*you? Is not the gleaning*of*the*grapes of Ephraim better than*the*vintage of Abi-ezer?

3 God hath delivered into your hands the princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb: and what was*I*able to do in*comparison*of*you? Then their anger was abated toward him, when he had said that.

4 And Gideon came to Jordan, and passed over, he, and the three hundred men that were with him, faint, yet pursuing them.

5 And he said unto the men of Succoth, Give, I*pray*you, loaves of bread unto the people that follow me; for they be faint, and I am pursuing after Zebah and Zalmunna, kings of Midian.

6 And the princes of Succoth said, Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread unto thine army?

7 And Gideon said, Therefore when the LORD hath delivered Zebah and Zalmunna into mine hand, then I will tear your flesh with the thorns of the wilderness and with briers.

8 And he went up thence to Penuel, and spoke unto them likewise: and the men of Penuel answered him as the men of Succoth had answered him.

9 And he spoke also unto the men of Penuel, saying, When I come again in peace, I will break down this tower.

10 Now Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor, and their hosts with them, about fifteen thousand men, all that were left of all the hosts of the children of the east: for there fell a hundred and twenty thousand men that drew sword.

8:33 A strange contrast is made in this verse between Baal-berith, which means "Baal (the lord) of the covenant," and Jehovah, with whom Israel had made their covenant. They were in fact exchanging one covenant for the other! This apostasy was centered in Shechem, and no doubt Gideon had opened the way for this apostasy by making the ephod (see the note on Judg. 8:27).

11:29–33 This vow of Jephthah has caused much concern for many Bible scholars. If no other considerations are brought into the discussion, the language of this passage would naturally lead one to believe that Jephthah actually did offer his daughter as a sacrifice to the Lord. Most conservative commentators, on the contrary, hold that Jephthah did not actually put his daughter to death, but dedicated her to the service of the Lord.

There are two major areas of discussion relative to the vow. The first deals with whether Jephthah actually intended a human sacrifice when he made the vow. Some would attempt to prove by the choice of words used in the vow that he did intend a human sacrifice. However, it must be pointed out that this was only one of the possibilities according to the usage of the word "whatsoever." Otherwise, if he had intended a human sacrifice, why would he have been so surprised and distraught when his daughter became the object of the vow (v. 35)? Also, Jephthah knew the Law well enough that he could not have been ignorant of the fact that God did not allow human sacrifice. Furthermore, he would have been doubly guilty since he had no other children, and he knew that sacrifices to Jehovah were to be exclusively of the male gender (v. 34). Jephthah's apprehension concerning the coming battle with the children of Ammon caused him to word his vow hastily and leave open the possibility of a human sacrifice.

The second problem is whether Jephthah actually did take his own daughter's life. It would have been next to impossible for Jephthah to have found a priest who would perform such a sacrifice. The idea expressed by conservative scholars is that if this were true, Jephthah would not have been included in the "heroes of the faith" (Heb. 11:32). Furthermore, would it be proper to commend Jephthah if he had broken God's laws in such a serious matter? To say that his daughter spent her last two months of life up in the mountains with her friends rather than with her mourning father would have been peculiar. In addition to this, why is it that she bemoans her virginity rather than her short life? The phrase "and she knew no man" would be meaningless if her life had been taken. It would seem more logical to assume that she was to be wholly given to the service of the Lord where she must continue in her virginity.

The most sensible explanation of these events then would be that Jephthah did not actually perform a human sacrifice because he knew and obeyed God's laws even though, according to his original vow, this would have been the result. The phrase stating that he "did with her according to his vow" does not actually state that he took her life, but that Jephthah dedicated her to the Lord.

12:6 This was a linguistic test given in order to tell whether or not a man was an Ephraimite. The word "Shibboleth" meant "a stream in flood time." However, an Ephraimite, because of the nature of his dialect, said "Sibboleth," substituting the "s" sound for the "sh" sound. 13:1 The Philistines were a group of people from the Aegean Sea area. Called "the sea people," they had been present in Canaan for centuries in small numbers (Gen. 20, 21, 26). In the thirteenth century B.C., a large number of these "sea people" attempted to conquer Egypt, but were defeated and afterward settled on the coast of Canaan. Even Samson's victory against them (Judg. 16:30) was not the final time that the Philistines were mentioned in regard to Israel. They were evidently still a plague to Israel even in David's day (2 Sam. 5:17–25).

13:18, 19 The Hebrew word translated "secret" (pāli' [6383]) should be translated "wonderful." This is the adjectival form of the noun pele' (6382) which occurs in the Messianic prophecy in Isaiah 9:6, where it is translated "Wonderful." This, plus the angel's willingness to accept offerings, indicate that this was a Christophany, an appearance of Jesus Christ before His incarnation.

13:22 See the note on Exodus 23:20–23.

13:24 Samson was a Danite, living adjacent to the Philistines. He was selected before birth as the one who would begin to deliver Israel from the Philistines (Judg. 13:5). God gave him superhuman strength to achieve this, but Samson's whole life was filled with compromise in his repeated refusal to control his sensual desires and whims. His physical blinding by the Philistines (Judg. 16:21) seemingly brought about the opening of his spiritual eyes; for he gave his life for his people, and is included with the "heroes of faith" in the New Testament (Heb. 11:32). His last act of killing the Philistines' leaders did more to defeat them than all his earlier conquests combined (Judg. 16:30).

14:3, 4 Mixed marriages by Israelites with these other races were forbidden (Deut. 7:3). Samson's parents were right to oppose his marriage to a heathen woman from the Philistine people who constantly oppressed Israel. It should not be understood here that God forced Samson into this marriage, but that he made his own decision. Though it was not right, God used it to accomplish His will in spite of the lack of wisdom on Samson's part. It proved to be the crucial link in the liberation of Israel from the Philistines (Judg. 15:1–8).

16:13 The "web" mentioned here was undoubtedly the cloth which Delilah was weaving in a loom. The pin was the object with which the braided locks were fastened to the web. She probably wove Samson's hair into the cloth.

16:17 Samson's admission to Delilah here should be interpreted then as a denial of that trust and a breaking of his covenant, the Nazarite vow, for which God left him (Judg. 16:20). However, his strength returned one more time, allowing him to decimate the Philistine leaders. This came about only after he made a statement of repentance and admitted that God was the true source of his strength (Judg. 16:28).

21:16–24 The "feast" spoken of in verse nineteen probably refers to the Passover or one of the three great Jewish feasts (Ex. 23:14–17). In these unsettled times the men went up to Shiloh only once a year instead of three times (1 Sam. 1:3). Only the males kept the feasts, therefore the virgins of Shiloh would naturally be the only maidens present. The public festival would be a likely occasion for their festive dances. It is possible that this was simply a local festival which was peculiar to Shiloh, like the yearly sacrifice of David's family at Bethlehem (1 Sam. 20:29). The men of Israel had made a hasty oath in the heat of anger (Judg. 21:1). Later, when they saw the plight of Benjamin, that without wives the tribe would soon cease to exist, they felt compassion for them (Judg. 21:13, 14). However, the terms of their oath stood; though they would not give their daughters as wives to the Benjamites, they instructed them in detail how to go up to Shiloh and carry off the girls at the festival. In their minds, they would not be guilty of breaking the oath, and the Benjamites would have wives and be preserved as a tribe even though the women were gained by violent means.

RUTH

The Book of Ruth is an inspiring love story which demonstrates God's providential care. The name of the author is not given, but traditionally the book is credited to Samuel. The Book of Ruth was originally part of the Book of Judges. However, by New Testament times it was included on a scroll with four other books that were read publicly at the feasts of Israel. These books were known as the Five Megilloth (scrolls) and were arranged in the following order: Song of Solomon, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Esther. The Book of Ruth was read at the Feast of Harvest (Pentecost) because much of the story is set in the harvest fields.

The genealogy at the end of the book is very important because it shows that God chose Ruth, a woman from the heathen land of Moab, to be an ancestor of King David. Ruth is also one of the four women named in the genealogy of Jesus (Matt. 1:5).

The story of Ruth probably took place during the time of Gideon (ca. 1130 B.C.). The famine mentioned in Ruth seems to correspond to the oppression by the Midianites and Israel's subsequent deliverance (Ruth 1:1, 6, cf. Judg. 6:3, 4). Jewish tradition holds that Ruth lived at the same time as Eli the priest. Since she was at least the great–grandmother of David, she must have lived around the twelfth century B.C.

Several laws and customs were involved in the proceedings which led to the marriage of Boaz and Ruth. According to Deuteronomy 25:5, if a woman's husband died and she was left without children, her husband's brother was required to marry her so that there could be an heir to carry on the name of the man who had died. Since Ruth's deceased husband, Mahlon, had no other living brothers, she would most likely have remained unmarried. However, Naomi and Ruth decided to sell the land that belonged to Elimelech, Mahlon, and Chilion. The historian Josephus explains that in this case, the nearest kinsman would customarily have the first option to buy the land, but he would also be expected to marry Ruth (Antiquities V. 9. 4.). The nearest kinsman to Ruth refused to buy the land because in raising up heirs to Mahlon he would have marred his own children's inheritance (Ruth 4:6). In other words, any children born to him and Ruth would be the heirs to all his fortune, making it impossible for him to give an inheritance to those of his own family name. When this man refused to buy the land, Boaz, who was the next closest relative was free to marry Ruth (see the notes on Ruth 2:20; 4:1–8).

It is also in this area that David would tend his father's sheep, and that Joseph would bring his young wife, Mary, to deliver her baby, the Lord Jesus Christ. It is possible that in the hills above these fields the shepherds were tending to their flocks on the night when Christ was born.

2:20 The three requirements for a kinsman-redeemer were: closest living relative, financial ability, and willingness (Lev. 25:25, 48, 49). Boaz fulfilled all three requirements, after the nearest kin was unwilling (see the introduction to Ruth and the note on Ruth 4:1–8). These requirements help us understand why Christ, as our kinsman-redeemer, had to come as a man (relationship) who was also fully God (ability), and voluntarily accept the cost (Matt. 26:39, 42) of redeeming His people (willingness).

Elimelech's:

4:1–8 Boaz was willing to perform the duty of next of kin to redeem a piece of land so it could stay in the family (see Lev. 25:25), but there was a man who was a closer relative. However, the plans of the closer relative were complicated by the need to contract a "levirate marriage." Therefore, the other relative deferred to Boaz, who willingly married Ruth. The legal basis for this practice is found in Deuteronomy 25:5–10, but the obligation dates back to the patriarchs (Gen. 38:8). The legal ramifications of such cases were still being discussed in Jesus' day (Matt. 22:23–28).

It is to be noted that Ruth did not shame the relative who refused to perform his duty. According to Deuteronomy, she was supposed to take off his sandal and spit in his face, yet it appears that she was not even present with Boaz at the time. Some have suggested that Ruth was not able to do so because she was a Moabitess. Others say that because of her love for Boaz, Ruth did not want to marry the person who was the closest relative. See the introduction to the Book of Ruth.

4:17–22 Boaz was a descendant of Salmon who married Rahab the harlot of Jericho (Josh. 2:1–21; Matt. 1:5). Since the purpose of Hebrew genealogies was to show lineage rather than to list each particular descendant, it is possible that some generations are missing in both Ruth 4:18–22 or Matthew 1:4–6. Assuming that the generations from Ruth to David are complete, Ruth and Boaz were King David's great-grandparents.

The First Book of

SAMUEL

The books of First and Second Samuel made up one book originally. They remained so in the Hebrew text until the publishing of the Hebrew Bible in A.D. 1517 where they appeared as the separate books we know today. The Septuagint and other translations of the Old Testament that followed divided the books of Samuel and Kings into First Kings through Fourth Kings.

The Book of First Samuel presents in detail the transitional phase between the period of the judges and the period of the kings. During this time God instituted the offices of prophet and king, the latter replacing the office of the judge as Israel's political leader. It is important to note that the prophetic function did not originate at this time. Moses and Deborah are examples of those who were both political leaders over Israel and prophets (Ex. 3:11–22; Judg. 4:4, 5). These should be distinguished from Samuel and his successors, who were not rulers used in a prophetic capacity, but those who held the office of prophet. It was not until Samuel organized the "company of the prophets" (1 Sam. 19:20) that the office seems to have been formally established in Israel. Samuel bridged the gap between the periods of the judges and kings in that he was the last one to serve as a judge in all Israel (see the note on 1 Sam. 8:5–7) and that he anointed the first two kings of Israel, Saul and David.

The book, whose principal characters are Samuel, Saul, and David, is divided into two sections: the first seven chapters outline the life and ministry of Samuel, and the remainder of the book describes the events during the reign of Saul. The climax is reached when God rejects Saul as king for disobeying His command, and instructs Samuel to anoint David, the son of Jesse, as the next king (1 Sam. 15:26).

1:11 The outward sign of not shaving Samuel's head was associated with the Nazarite vow (see the note on Num. 6:2–21). Apparently Samuel, like Samson (see Judg. 13:4, 5), was to be a Nazarite. The difference was that Samson was a Nazarite by God's instruction and Samuel's mother made the vow for her son. As a result of her faith toward God, Hannah's prayer was answered.

The Philistines Return the Ark to Israel

6 And the ark of the LORD was in the country of the Philistines seven months.

2 And the Philistines called for the priests and the diviners, saying, What shall we do to the ark of the LORD? tell us wherewith we shall send it to his place.

3 And they said, If ye send away the ark of the God of Israel, send it not empty; but in*any*wise*return him a trespass offering: then ye shall be healed, and it shall be known to you why his hand is not removed from you.

4 Then said they, What shall be the trespass offering which we shall return to him? They answered, Five golden emerods, and five golden mice, according to the number of the lords of the Philistines: for one plague was on you all, and on your lords.

5 Wherefore ye shall make images of your emerods, and images of your mice that mar the land; and ye shall give glory unto the God of Israel: peradventure he will lighten his hand from off you, and from off your gods, and from off your land.

6 Wherefore then do ye harden your hearts, as the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their hearts? when he had wrought wonderfully among them, did they not let*the*people*go, and they departed?

7 Now therefore make a new cart, and take two milch kine, on which there hath come no yoke, and tie the kine to the cart, and bring their calves home from them:

8 And take the ark of the LORD, and lay it upon the cart; and

In this case, the cows did follow a straight line, carrying the ark back to Israel, which revealed that their behavior was being controlled by God (cf. Num. 22:22–31). God is all-powerful and is able to use all facets of His creation to accomplish His will.

8:3 Like Eli, Samuel neglected to discipline and teach his sons properly. Perhaps, like some servants of God today, he was away from home too much and too occupied with helping others. Just as the personal failures of individual ministers lead many to reject the whole concept of the Church, the failure of Samuel's sons led the people to reject their authority as judges, as well as to reject God, who in His sovereignty set them up to rule over His people.

8:5–7 In this passage, the Israelites' request for a king is condemned by God. What is it that made this request a sin? It seems clear that there was nothing wrong with the desire for a monarchy. God knew that someday Israel would desire a king. In Deuteronomy 17:14–20, He had given guidelines that were to be followed by the people and by the kings that would reign over them (cf. Gen. 17:6, 16; 35:11). It seems equally clear that there was nothing wrong with the time of their request. Though some have suggested that the kingdom was not proper until the coming of the Messiah, there is nothing in the context of the passages in question that supports this view. Hence, it seems that the motive of the people in making the request was what made their actions sinful; though on the surface their motives seem to be justified. They wanted to avoid further military losses (1 Sam. 8:20) and to be rid of the corrupt leaders of the future, the sons of Samuel and of Eli.

Samuel saw their request to be a rejection of himself, but God affirmed that they had actually rejected Him. The people were no longer satisfied with the system of judges that had been established. They improperly attributed the failures during that time to the system itself, not to their sin. They rejected God because they wanted to be like the other nations, not a peculiar people, set apart as the chosen ones of God. What the people wanted was a visible deliverer, a man in whom they could place their trust (cf. Judg. 8:22, 23). They wanted to walk by sight, not by faith. In so doing, they thought to escape the moral demands of the Law by doing away with the theocracy under which they had been living.

10:20–24 That Saul was "taken" (lākadh [3920]) means that lots were drawn, probably out of an urn. The selection was carried out by process of elimination, beginning with the selection of the tribe of Benjamin and ending with the selection of an individual of the clan of Matri and the family of Kish. The lot fell upon Saul. The Jews understood the drawing or casting of lots to be a means of discovering God's will. As to the necessity of the procedures carried on at Mizpeh, it may be observed that neither Saul nor Samuel had informed the people of Saul's prior anointing (v. 16), making this action necessary to show the people that Saul was to be their king. It is likely that the days between the anointing and this ceremony at Mizpeh were intended for meditation and instruction (v. 8, cf. 1 Sam. 13:7, 8).

Only divine wisdom can fully understand the choice of Saul for king. Yet, it should be noted that Saul fully satisfied the desires of the people. He was a man of great stature from the most military tribe in all of Israel. Who better, they thought, to lead the people in battle against their enemies? Saul was also a man whose own spiritual life mirrored that of the majority of Israel: he was a house built upon the sand, whose lack of saving faith was made clear when the storms came. Any life or nation built upon such a foundation will surely fail.

Nevertheless, the purposes and design of God are never circumvented by the wickedness of men (Job 35:6). Soon after Saul's failure, David was chosen. Saul's reign revealed the motive of the people's demand for a king. Even if Saul had been obedient, his reign was destined to be temporary, for the tribe of Judah was the royal tribe, from which the King of Glory would come (Gen. 49:10).

Israel Defeats the Philistines

16 And the watchmen of Saul in Gibeah of Benjamin looked; and, behold, the multitude melted away, and they went on beating down one another.

17 Then said Saul unto the people that were with him, Number now, and see who is gone from us. And when they had numbered, behold, Jonathan and his armorbearer were not there.

18 And Saul said unto Ahiah, Bring hither the ark of God. For the ark of God was at that time with the children of Israel.

19 And it*came*to*pass, while Saul talked unto the priest, that the noise that was in the host of the Philistines went on and increased: and Saul said unto the priest, Withdraw thine hand.

20 And Saul and all the people that were with him assembled themselves, and they came to the battle: and, behold, every man's sword was against his fellow, and there was a very great discomfiture.

14:18, 19 This passage states that Saul desired to know God's will by seeking the "ark of God." However, there is some controversy as to whether Saul was calling for the ark of the covenant to be brought from Kirjath-jearim (see 1 Chr. 13:5, 6), or simply asking the priest wearing the ephod to step forward. Some manuscripts have the word for "ark." There are certainly cases in Scripture where the ark of the covenant was taken along with the children of Israel when they went to battle (1 Sam. 4:3). Other Hebrew manuscripts have the word for "ephod." The Septuagint, the Greek translation of the Old Testament, also used the word "ephod." The ephod was already in Saul's camp at Gibeah (1 Sam. 14:3). It contained the Urim and Thummim and was used to receive guidance from God (1 Sam. 23:9; 30:7). Some speculate that the phrase "withdraw thy hand" is more appropriate in regard to the ephod (see 2 Sam. 6:6, 7). Still other Hebrew texts imply that Saul perhaps sought guidance through both methods.

47 So Saul took the kingdom over Israel, and fought against all his pl,qpta,pnx341 ad5439 pp,nn4124 wcj,pp,pl,cs,nn1121 nn5983 enemies on every side, against Moab, and against the children of Ammon, and against Edom, and against the kings of Zobah, and against the Philistines: and whithersoever he turned himself, he vexed them.

48 And he gathered a host, and smote the Amalekites, and delivered Israel out*of*the*hands of them that spoiled them.

49 Now the sons of Saul were Jonathan, and Ishui, and Melchi-shua: and the names of his two daughters were these; the name of the firstborn Merab, and the name of the younger Michal:

50 And the name of Saul's wife was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz: and the name of the captain of his host was Abner, the son of Ner, Saul's uncle.

51 And Kish was the father of Saul; and Ner the father of Abner was the son of Abiel.

52 And there was sore war against the Philistines all the days of Saul: and when Saul saw any strong man, or any valiant man, he took him unto him.

Saul's Second Sin at Gilgal

15 Samuel also said unto Saul, The LORD sent me to anoint thee to be king over his people, over Israel: now therefore hearken thou unto the voice of the words of the LORD.

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, I remember that which Amalek did to Israel, how he laid wait for him in the way, when he came up from Egypt.

3 Now go and smite Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have, and spare them not; but slay both man and woman, infant and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass.

4 And Saul gathered*the*people*together, and numbered them in Telaim, two hundred thousand footmen, and ten thousand men of Judah.

5 And Saul came to a city of Amalek, and laid wait in the valley.

16:13 The Jews recognized that the Messiah, the Christ, would come from David's descendants (John 7:42). One of the key titles given to Jesus during His earthly ministry was "Son of David" (Matt. 9:27; 12:23; 15:22), emphasizing His heirship of all of David's royal prerogatives, as well as His fulfillment of the messianic promises to David (2 Sam. 7:8–17, cf. Matt. 22:41–45; Luke 1:32, 69).

16:18 It is interesting that David is called here a "mighty valiant man, and a man of war" when he had not yet had a chance to prove himself in battle (see 1 Sam. 17:33). It seems likely that David had exhibited these qualities in his experiences as a shepherd, and they were equated with valor in war situations.

It is the law of love for one's neighbor (Lev. 19:18). In the New Testament, Jesus summarized the ten commandments in what He called the two greatest commandments: to love God with one's entire being and to love one's neighbor as oneself (Matt. 22:37–40). According to this principle, the pressing need of David and his men to obtain food warranted an overriding of the levitical law. A similar instance occurred with Christ and His disciples as they picked and ate corn on the Sabbath because they had no other food (Matt. 12:3, 4; Mark 2:25, 26; Luke 6:3, 4). When confronted by the Pharisees about this violation of the letter of the law, Christ referred back to David's actions as an example of how the Pharisees misunderstood the whole point of the laws and the Sabbath. Mercy and necessity override the letter, but not the spirit of the law (cf. Hos. 6:6), as Christ illustrated by healing on the Sabbath (Matt. 12:10–13).

The only stipulation which the priest set forth was that the men who were to eat the consecrated bread were not levitically defiled (cf. Lev. 15:18). David responded that he and his men had indeed kept themselves clean because of the mission which they were performing. He proclaimed in verse five that even though the levitical law regarding who should eat the bread was being broken, he and his men, as instruments of God, would make the bread become holy as they carried out their task for God.

David and Abigail

The Book of Second Samuel focuses on the reign of King David. Some commentators outline the book according to the political situation, dividing it into his rule over Judah (2 Sam. 1:1—4:12) and over all Israel (2 Sam. 5:1—12:31). Others divide the book by spiritual content, making note of two particular sections: David's triumphs (2 Sam. 1:1—12:31) and David's troubles (2 Sam. 13:1—24:25).

God's reason for choosing David is clear from the statement, "the LORD hath sought him a man after his [God's] own heart" (1 Sam. 13:14). The psalms that David wrote reveal his passionate devotion to God. Despite this strong commitment, he was guilty of several great sins, the consequences of which affected not only him personally, but also the members of his family and the whole nation (2 Sam. 24:13–15).

The prophetic blessing that God gave to David includes the promise that his kingdom would be established forever (chap. 7). This blessing, called the Davidic Covenant, is an expansion of God's promises to Abraham (Gen. 12:7; 15:18; 17:8; 22:17). The promise of an all-powerful king that would reign on the throne of David is repeated many times throughout Scripture (Is. 55:3; Jer. 23:5; 30:9; 33:15–26; Ezek. 34:23, 24; 37:24, 25; Acts 15:16). The kingship of David was enhanced by the prophetic ministries of Samuel, Nathan, and Gad. For this reason, it is very possible that Nathan and Gad also wrote portions of this book (1 Chr. 29:29).

1:1–10 The story the Amalekite told was different from the actual account in 1 Samuel 31:3–5. Apparently, this man discovered Saul's dead body and looted it. Some time later he told his own version to David, hoping that he would be rewarded for his "good news" (see 2 Sam. 4:10).

1:18 A reference to the book of Jasher is also found in Joshua 10:13. It is apparently a historical book of military poetry, a collection of songs about heroes. It had more material added to it as the years went by, but it is now lost. Jasher is probably a name used to refer to Israel. It is seen in Deuteronomy 32:15 under the form "Jeshurun" which means "the righteous or upright one." The book printed under this name in modern times is spurious.

2:8–11 Abner was a close relative of Saul (1 Sam. 14:50) and wanted to gain as much control as possible after the death of Saul and Jonathan. This is why he set up Ish-bosheth as king of all the tribes except Judah, which was loyal to David. Up to this time David had been accepted as king only by his own tribe, Judah (v. 10). Hebron was the capital city for the first seven and one-half years of David's reign. Ishbosheth, the son of Saul, was his rival for two years, reigning over all the other tribes of Israel (vv. 8–10). He depended upon Abner, who had been Saul's commander-in-chief. It was only after the death of Abner, who incidentally had already defected to David's side, that Israel's confidence in him began to diminish (2 Sam. 3:1). After the death of Ishbosheth, David was crowned king over all Israel and reigned for thirty-three and one-half years (2 Sam. 5:1–5). He was king for a total of forty years.

2:13 Joab was the nephew of David. Zeruiah was David's half-sister (1 Chr. 2:16), probably through the marriage of his mother to Nahash (2 Sam. 17:25). This was before David's mother married Jesse, David's father.

2:14 This is similar to the offer made by Goliath (1 Sam. 17:8, 9). It was hoped that a single contest between champions would avoid much bloodshed.

3:7 A concubine was much more than a mistress. In a sense, she was a secondary "wife" (Ex. 21:8–10; Deut. 21:11–13). She was a member of the royal household, took her position by an official ceremony of appointment, and had the rights of a married woman. Unlike a true wife, concubines were usually acquired by purchase or were captives taken in war. She could be "divorced" summarily and then released, but never to be a slave (Gen. 16:2, 3; 21:10; Ex. 21:7, 8; Deut. 21:10–14; Mal. 2:14–16).

5:1–5 Concerning David's rise to power over all Israel, see the note on 2 Samuel 2:8–11.

5:6–10 David's first undertaking, after being crowned king of all Israel, was to conquer the city of Jerusalem. The fortress of Zion (5:6b–7) was almost invulnerable, located as it was in the mountains of Judah. It was a strategic military site, centrally located between Judah in the south and the rest of Israel in the north. It also dominated the main trade routes in the area. Salem was an early name for the city (see the notes on Gen. 14:18–20 and Judg. 1:8). Members of the nation of Israel had been living in the area, but the central fortress remained in the hands of a group of Amorite people called "Jebusites." After David captured the fortress, he began to rebuild and expand the city, making it the seat of his kingdom.

nn1732 wcs,qmf3920 (853) cs,nn4686 nn6726 pnp1931 nn5892

6:7 God's severity toward Uzzah served notice to the people of Israel that God must be revered and obeyed. Uzzah showed disrespect for God by touching the ark (Num 4:15). Furthermore, as one of the priests, he was disobeying God by letting the ark be carried on a cart. How true it is that by disobedience of God's specific instructions, one is often led into another error! The ark was supposed to be carried by the priests upon staves or poles (Ex. 25:12–15; Josh. 3:8). However, nowhere does the text indicate that Uzzah's personal, eternal salvation was involved; his intentions were good (Matt. 7:1).

7:4–16 David's desire to build a house for the Lord sets the stage for one of the key passages in Scripture relating to the coming Messiah (see the note on 1 Sam. 16:13). God's message through Nathan (vv. 8–16) is called the Davidic Covenant. It is both an expansion and a clarification of God's promises to Abraham. It represents an unconditional promise to David that he would be the head of an everlasting kingdom (v. 16). David is also promised that his son would reign over Israel (v. 12), and that this son (Solomon) would be the one to build a house for the Lord (v. 13). Elsewhere, God's reasons for not allowing David to build the temple are spelled out: he was a man of war and bloodshed (1 Kgs. 5:3; 1 Chr. 22:8; 28:3), whereas his son would be a man of peace. It was also too early to build the temple–the city is not yet secure (1 Kgs. 5:3, 4). David was, however, permitted to begin stockpiling the materials Solomon would use to build the temple (1 Chr. 22:2–19).

12:1–14 Here the consequences of David's great sin became evident to him. Observe how skillfully Nathan used his parable (vv. 1–4) to bring David to condemn himself. David had violated four of the ten commandments in one rash sin: thou shalt not kill, thou shalt not steal, thou shalt not commit adultery, and thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife. Although it was about a year later, David sincerely repented of his sin (see Ps. 32:3, 4; 51:1–19). While his repentance brought about forgiveness from God, it did not prevent him from suffering the consequences of his sin. God revealed that because of David's sin, the son born from his adulterous relationship would die (2 Sam. 12:14, 18), the sword would never depart from his house (v. 10), evil would come from his own family (v. 11; see chaps. 15–18), and his wives would be publicly shamed (v. 11; see 2 Sam. 16:22). The important lesson to learn from these events is that even the best of men can sin. Also, true repentance does bring forgiveness from God, but does not eliminate the consequences of sin.

that there would be a time in the future when he too would die, and there he would be joined to his son who had died. While the child was alive, David's prayer was for life; after the death of the child, he no longer saw the need to mourn for him, but rather he continued living with the expectancy of someday being with his child again. This verse has been used as a source of comfort for those who have lost infants or small children to early deaths.

12:24 Solomon's name appears fourth on the lists of Bath-sheba's sons (2 Sam. 5:14–16; 1 Chr. 3:5; 14:4), but this does not necessarily mean that he was the fourth born. This verse seems to indicate that he was the oldest of David's and Bath-sheba's sons. However, he was not David's firstborn, for it is clear from 2 Samuel 3:2–5 and 1 Chronicles 3:1–9 that he had six sons born to him in Hebron. Normally, the firstborn son would succeed the father as king; but in this case, God made Solomon his choice. In 1 Chronicles 28:4, 5, David says, ". . . he (God) hath chosen Solomon my son . . ."; and in 1 Chronicles 29:1, he says ". . . Solomon my son, whom alone God hath chosen. . . ."

15:12 Ahithophel had been a member of David's cabinet as well as his chief counselor. Perhaps Ahithophel turned against David because of the events surrounding the death of Uriah the Hittite, the husband of Bath-sheba. This would seem logical since Ahithophel was Bath-sheba's grandfather (2 Sam. 11:3; 23:34).
15:18 Originally, David's band of rebels that had fled with him from Saul to the Philistine city of Gath (1 Sam. 27:2) and continued with him in Ziklag, Hebron, and Jerusalem (1 Sam. 30:1; 2 Sam. 2:3; 5:6) was composed of six hundred men. 16:4 David's decision to trust the words of Ziba was too hasty. According to 2 Samuel 19:24–28, Ziba was lying, and Mephibosheth's loyalty to David had never changed.

16:8 In this verse Shimei was probably blaming David for the deaths of Abner (2 Sam. 3:27–39), and Ish-bosheth (2 Sam. 4:1–12) who, along with himself, were related to Saul. However, in these instances David was not guilty of any wrong. In fact, he had the men put to death that murdered Ishbosheth. It was true that David was a man of war, but he was not necessarily the one responsible for eliminating the members of Saul's family.

20:16 The phrase "wise woman" used of the woman in this verse means that she was doing something extraordinary. The word translated "wise" is also used of Joseph when he was able to interpret the Pharaoh's dream (Gen. 41:33). In this verse, this woman is called "wise" because she did what was in the best interest of protecting her people.

David's Officials

23 Now Joab was over all the host of Israel: and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites and over the Pelethites:

Gibionites Are Avenged

21 Then there was a famine in the days of David three years, year after year; and David inquired of the LORD. And the LORD answered, It is for Saul, and for his bloody house, because he slew the Gibeonites.

2 And the king called the Gibeonites, and said unto them; (now the Gibeonites were not of*the*children of Israel, but of*the*remnant of the Amorites; and the children of Israel had sworn unto them: and Saul sought to slay them in his zeal to the children of Israel and Judah.)

3 Wherefore David said unto the Gibeonites, What shall I do for you? and wherewith shall I make the atonement, that ye may bless the inheritance of the LORD?

4 And the Gibeonites said unto him, We will have no silver nor gold of Saul, nor of his house; neither for us shalt thou kill any man in Israel. And he said, What ye shall say, that will I do for you.

5 And they answered the king, The man that consumed us, and that devised against us that we should be destroyed from remaining in any of the coasts of Israel, collect the proper offering which had been commanded in Exodus 30:12. Most scholars, however, feel that the sin was a result of David's attitude of pride and arrogance. Still others suggest that his intentions were to maximize military strength and to tax the people further. In any event, when he repented, God gave him three options for the consequences of his sin: famine, military defeat, or pestilence. David fully trusted in God even as he chose (v. 14). There is a lesson to be learned from David's action: while one may be experiencing God's chastening, he must still rely on His ultimate grace, trust Him fully, and be committed to Him.

KINGS

The books of First and Second Kings, which made up only one volume in the Hebrew Scriptures, were first divided in the edition of the Hebrew Bible that was published in A.D. 1517. The Septuagint and the translations of the Old Testament that followed divided the books of Samuel and Kings into First Kings through Fourth Kings. The books of First and Second Kings relate the history of the Jewish people from the death of David to the captivity of Judah (ca. 970 to 560 B.C.).

A recurring theme in both books involves the examples that each king chose to follow. Repeatedly, David is presented as the best example for kings (1 Kgs. 3:14; 11:4, 6; 15:3; 2 Kgs. 14:3; 16:2; 22:2) and Jeroboam as the worst (1 Kgs. 15:34; 16:2, 26, 31; 22:52; 2 Kgs. 3:3; 10:29, 31; 13:2, 6, 11).

The Talmud, the authoritative body of Jewish tradition, states that Jeremiah was the author of both books of the Kings. Nevertheless, the Holy Spirit directed him to use the records of contemporary prophets to complete the work. Some prophets who wrote during this time, but whose writings were not included in the canon of Scripture, are Jehu (1 Kgs. 16:1); Nathan, Ahijah, and Iddo (2 Chr. 9:29); and Shemaiah (2 Chr. 12:15). Even some of the prophets who wrote a portion of the Scripture did, as in the case of Isaiah, write other, non–canonical works during this period (2 Chr. 26:22).

The Book of First Kings covers the reign of Solomon, the division of the kingdom, and the reigns of the kings of Israel and Judah up through Jehoshaphat and Ahaziah respectively. The immense riches that Solomon accumulated and the tremendous advances that the nation made during his reign deteriorated under later kings. It was Solomon, however, who started the nation on this course. He brought disgrace on himself and all Israel by refusing to use discretion in his relationships with women (1 Kgs. 11:1–11). Solomon did well to ask God for wisdom to govern Israel (1 Kgs. 3:4–28), but he did not continue to act wisely. He ignored the last counsel that his father David had given him (1 Kgs. 2:2, 3) and began to trust in human means of government rather than in God. Solomon taxed the nation so heavily that the people were ready to rebel, and following his death, the nation permanently divided because his successor, Rehoboam, thought he could continue to tax the people as heavily as Solomon.

Though he was David's fourth son, Adonijah was the oldest living son, and thus he assumed he would be the next king. 2:22 Apparently Adonijah had not given up all aspirations of ascending to his father's throne. According to Eastern customs, marrying any of a late king's wives or concubines was recognized as an attempt to claim the former king's rights.

2:26, 27 Solomon's actions fulfilled the prophecy of 1 Samuel 2:31–36 that the priesthood would depart from the family of Eli of which Abiathar was a descendant. When Zadok was appointed priest (v. 35), the priesthood was returned to its ancient lineage since Zadok was a descendant of Eleazar the son of Aaron (1 Chr. 6:1–8). See the note on Jeremiah 1:1, with regard to Anathoth.

6:2 Exodus chapter twenty-six indicates that the Tabernacle proper had been thirty cubits by ten cubits. Solomon's Temple maintained the same proportions but was double the size (roughly 60 cubits by 20 cubits). This was large enough, for only the priests entered this central sanctuary. The rest of the temple complex was more magnificent and large enough for all the people to enter the outer courts. It was the richness of its furnishings, as much as the size, which distinguished Solomon's Temple from the Tabernacle which Moses had built.

11:30–35 Only eleven of the twelve pieces of the cloak are accounted for in this passage. The most reasonable solution is that the tribe of Benjamin, which did not really have an independent existence at this time, was left out. Benjamin was still one of the twelve tribes, but one that did not figure into this prophecy concerning the division of the kingdom. The tribe of Benjamin was so small that it had all but disappeared into the tribe of Judah. In 1 Kings 12:21, the tribe of Benjamin is listed as the ally of the tribe of Judah when the latter is preparing to attack the Northern Kingdom.

A Judean Prophet Warns Jeroboam

13 And, behold, there came a man of God out*of*Judah by the word of the LORD unto Bethel: and Jeroboam stood by the altar to burn incense.

2 And he cried against the altar in the word of the LORD, and said, O altar, altar, thus saith the LORD; Behold, a child shall be born unto the house of David, Josiah by name; and upon thee shall he offer the priests of the high places that burn incense upon thee, and men's bones shall be burnt upon thee.

3 And he gave a sign the same day, saying, This is the sign which the LORD hath spoken; Behold, the altar shall be rent, and the ashes that are upon it shall be poured out.

4 And it*came*to*pass, when king Jeroboam heard the saying of the man of God, which had cried against the altar in Bethel, that he put forth his hand from the altar, saying, Lay hold on him. And his hand, which he put forth against him, dried up, so that he could not pull*it*in*again to him.

5 The altar also was rent, and the ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign which the man of God had given by the word of the LORD.

6 And the king answered and said unto the man of God, Entreat now the face of the LORD thy God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored*me*again. And the man of God besought the LORD, and the king's hand was restored*him*again, and became as it was before.

7 And the king said unto the man of God, Come home with me, and refresh thyself, and I will give thee a reward.

8 And the man of God said unto the king, If thou wilt give me half thine house, I will not go in with thee, neither will I eat bread nor drink water in this place:

9 For so was it charged me by the word of the LORD, saying, Eat no

17:1 God raised Elijah up at a critical time, when the worship of Baal threatened the very existence of the worship of Jehovah in Israel. Elijah was perhaps associated with the schools of the prophets at Bethel, Jericho, and Gilgal (see the note on 2 Kgs. 2:3, 5). His prominence among the Old Testament prophets is seen in the fact that the forerunner of Christ, John the Baptist, was to come in the spirit and power of Elijah (Luke 1:17). It is also interesting that Elijah (representing the Prophets) and Moses (representing the Law), stood with Jesus on the Mount of Transfiguration.

KINGS

The Book of Second Kings traces the history of the divided kingdoms from the reign of Solomon until the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. In addition to the prophets Elijah and Elisha who ministered during this time, most of those who are now called the "writing prophets" were also active during this period. This fact is often overlooked, however, because so few of the writing prophets are named in the text of Kings and Chronicles. Throughout this period, the ministry of the prophets had a great influence in the lives of the people of Israel.

Overall, the religious activity of the divided kingdoms of Israel and Judah was characterized by apostasy. On the one hand, all the kings of the Northern Kingdom (Israel) acted "according to the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat" (2 Kgs. 3:3; 9:9; 10:29, 31; 13:2; 14:24; 15:9, 18; 17:22). These sins, however, did not go unpunished. Eventually, the Northern Kingdom and its capital, Samaria, were destroyed by Assyria and the people deported (722 B.C.) as judgment from the Lord. On the other hand, the Southern Kingdom (Judah) experienced periodic revivals under godly kings (2 Kgs. 14:3; 15:3; 18:3; 20:3; 22:2), but the people always returned to their wickedness. As a result, the Lord allowed Nebuchadnezzar to conquer them and carry them away into Babylon.

In the New Testament, John the Baptist appeared wearing clothing similar to Elijah's (Matt. 3:4; Mark 1:6), leading some to believe that he (John) was the one that was foretold to come in the "spirit and power of Elijah" (Luke 1:17; cf. 2:3, 5 The phrase "sons of the prophets" is a reference to the organization of those who were true, God-called prophets into schools at Gibeah and Naioth where they could be supervised by Samuel (1 Sam. 10:10; 19:20). Later, there is mention made of a group of one hundred prophets, members of such a school, who were hidden by Obadiah from being executed by Jezebel (1 Kgs. 18:4). The school set up in Gilgal (2 Kgs. 4:38–44) seems to indicate an atmosphere of a college where the prophets resided. In 2 Kings 6:1–4, there is an account of the building of such a school, and Elijah was the leader of this particular group.

16:6 In the modern order of the Old Testament Scriptures, the word "Jews" appears for the first time here. The term is derived from the name "Judah" and applied to all members of the tribe bearing his name. It was also used for all subjects of the kingdom of Judah in contrast to the kingdom made up of the ten tribes who seceded. These ten tribes retained the name "Israelites." After the Babylonian Captivity, the name "Jew" seems to have been applied indiscriminately to the whole race of Israelites.

17:6–18 In 722 or 721 B.C., the Northern Kingdom of Israel fell to Assyria. Shalmaneser V began the attack but died before it was completed, so Israel fell to Sargon II who took the inhabitants captive. Verses seven through eighteen give a list of all the ways that Israel was unfaithful to the Lord. Hosea prophesied that, as a punishment from God for their breaking of His covenant, the northern tribes would not return to the land (Hos. 9:3). However, they were promised restoration to the land after God had finished punishing them (Zech. 10:6, 10). See Ezekiel 48:1–7, 25–28 for future allotments of land to the tribes of the Northern Kingdom.

19:1–37 This passage is virtually identical to Isaiah 37:1–38. They are repeated to emphasize a different idea in each context. The passage in Isaiah marks the transition from Assyrian prominence (Is. 8:7; 20:1–6) to Babylonian supremacy (Is. 39:5–7). Here, the passage illustrates God's miraculous intervention on Judah's behalf (cf. 2 Kgs. 7:5–7).

23:10 The reference in this verse is to Molech (this word has been transliterated into the Greek word "Moloch" [Amos 5:26; Acts 7:43]) who was a deity worshiped by pagans in Canaan and whose worship was introduced to the Israelites soon after they entered the Promised Land (Josh. 15:8). Their rituals included the casting of one's child or children into a fiery pit in order to appease the god. Jehovah condemned this practice and commanded that any who engaged in it should be stoned (Lev. 18:21; 20:2–5; Jer. 32:35). Several kings in both Israel and Judah practiced the rituals of this religion (e.g., Manasseh in 2 Chr. 33:6). Solomon himself provided for the worship of Molech (1 Kgs. 11:7).

25:27 The term "Evil-merodach" is an unflattering rendering (in Hebrew, the first word meant "fool") of the Babylonian ruler "Amel-marduk" (which means "Man of Marduk"). Several Babylonian tablets have been recovered which verify that Jehoiachin and his five sons received special provisions while in exile, and that Jehoiachin was always regarded as the rightful king of Judah, not Zedekiah. Evil-merodach ruled for only two years. His brother-in-law assassinated him in 560 B.C.

The First Book of

CHRONICLES

The two books of Chronicles were originally only one volume. The title in the English Bible was derived from a Latin term used by Jerome, but the title in Hebrew (the first words of the Hebrew text) is translated "the words of the days." The latter reflects the content, which extends from the creation of man to the Babylonian Captivity. The Book of First Chronicles begins with extensive genealogies (chaps. 1—9) which trace the family lines all the way back to Adam. These records served to remind the returning exiles that the Law of Moses divided the land and religious duties among each of the twelve tribes. However, they also served to remind them that faith and repentance, not lineage, determines one's standing with God.

According to tradition, the books of First and Second Chronicles were written by Ezra the scribe near to the end of the period of Exile. This is supported by the fact that Ezra's purpose in coming to Jerusalem was to teach the people about God's laws (Ezra 7:10, 25) and by the emphasis of this book on the history of Jewish worship. Furthermore, the style of the Book of Ezra is very similar.

Ezra, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, incorporated the writings of several prophets into the books of First and Second Chronicles. Some of the prophets who wrote during this time are Nathan, Ahijah, and Iddo (2 Chr. 9:29); Shemaiah (2 Chr. 12:15); and Isaiah (2 Chr. 26:22; 32:32).

The intended lesson of these books is clear: obedience to God brings blessing (2 Chr. 15:12–15); disobedience brings disaster and defeat (1 Chr. 10:13, 14). God's people were responsible to fulfill the obligations inherent in their covenant relationship with Him. Although the books of First and Second Chronicles contain much of the same information as the books of Samuel and Kings, they cover the material from a theological rather than a historical perspective.

2:49, 50 The Caleb (son of Hezron) mentioned in verse forty-nine is not the same Caleb (son of Jephunneh) that spied out the land of Canaan although he also had a daughter named Achsa (Josh. 15:16–19; Judg. 1:12–15). The Caleb (son of Hur) in verse fifty was the grandson of the Caleb referred to previously (1 Chr. 2:19).

2:55 The Kenites were from the family of Hobab, the brother-in-law of Moses. They became incorporated into the tribe of Judah (Judg. 1:16). Jehonadab (Jonadab), a later descendant of Rechab, was noted as a reformer who kept himself pure (2 Kgs. 10:15, 23–28; Jer. 35:1–19).

3:17–19 Zerubbabel was considered the son of Pedaiah's brother, Shealtiel (Ezra 3:2; Hag. 1:12; 2:23; Matt. 1:12; Luke 3:27), perhaps as a result of a "levirate marriage" (Deut. 25:5–10; see the note on Ruth 4:1–8). Another suggestion is that Zerubbabel was appointed as heir to the throne after Shealtiel, his uncle, died without any heirs. In any event, Zerubbabel was an heir to the throne of David, but he could not become king because of the curse that was placed on his grandfather, Jeconiah (Jer. 22:30). Zerubbabel was the leader of a group of Jews who returned to Palestine in 538 B.C. from exile in Babylon (Ezra 2:2; 3:2).

3:19–24 It is reasonable to say that Ezra could have written concerning these descendants of Zerubbabel since Ezra's writing took place near 400 B.C., roughly the time of the sixth descendant of Zerubbabel (who is dated approximately 520 B.C.) would have lived. This information is based on a minimum of twenty years for each generation.

Saul's Death

10 Now the Philistines (wcj,pl,nn6430) (nipf3898) fought against (pp,nn3478) Israel; and the men of (nn376) Israel (nn3478) (wcs,qmf5127) fled
(pr4480/pl,cs,nn6440) from before the Philistines, and fell down (pl,nn6430) slain (wcs,qmf5307) in mount (pl,nn2491) Gilboa. (pp,nn2022) (nn1533)

2 And the (pl,nn6430) Philistines followed hard (wcs,himf1692) after (pr310) Saul, and after (nn7586) his (wcj,pr310) sons; and the (pl,nn,pnx1121)
(pl,nn6430) Philistines slew (wcs,himf5221) Jonathan, (853) and (nn3129) Abinadab, (wcj(853)) and (nn41) Malchi-shua, (wcj(853)) the (nn4444)
(pl,cs,nn1121) sons of (nn7586) Saul.

3 And the battle (df,nn4421) went sore (wcs,qmf3513) against (pr5921) Saul, and the (nn7586) archers (df,pl,hipt3384/dfp,nn7198) hit (wcs,qmf,pnx4672) him, and he was wounded (wcs,qmf2342) of (pr4480) the archers. (df,pl,qpta3384)

4 Then (wcs,qmf559) said (nn7586) Saul to (pr413) his armorbearer, (qpta5375/pl,nn,pnx3627) Draw (qmv8025) thy sword, (nn,pnx2719) and

5 And when (qpta5375/pl,nn,pnx3627) his armorbearer (wcs,qmf7200) saw (cj3588) that Saul was dead, (nn7586) he (qpf4191) fell (pnp1931) likewise (wcs,qmf5307)

7 And when (cs,nn3605) all (cs,nn376) the men of (nn3478) Israel (pnl834) that were in the valley (df,p,nn6010) saw (wcs,qmf7200) that (cj3588) they and (wcs,qmf5127) fled: (pl,nn6430) and the Philistines (wcs,qmf935) came and dwelt (wcs,qmf3427) in them. (pp,pnx)

8 And it*came*to*pass (wcs,qmf1961) on the morrow, (pr4480) when the (nn4283) Philistines (pl,nn6430) came (wcs,qmf935) to strip (pp,pinc6584)

(853) unto their idols, (pl,nn,pnx6091) and (wcj(853)) to the people. (df,nn5971)

13:9, 10 Uzza was from the tribe of Levi which had the responsibility for the Tabernacle and its contents, including the ark of the covenant. The ark rested for twenty years in the house of his father, Abinadab. The priests were responsible for covering the ark (as well as all the utensils and furniture of the sanctuary) for travel (Num. 4:5–14), and it would appear from the context that they were not to touch the ark while doing so. The family of Kohath was in charge of carrying the ark using the rings and poles provided (Ex. 25:14), but were promised death if they touched the ark when they were moving it (Num. 4:15). It was not to be carried on wagons, but on human shoulders (Num. 7:9). It appears that there was no priest in charge of its transportation (Num. 3:32). Uzza's death was in accordance with the warning given to the Kohathites. It certainly stood out as an example which effectively checked the evil spreading among the people (1 Chr. 15:2–13). See the note on 2 Samuel 6:7.

13:14 Obed-edom was a Levite of the family of Korah in the clan of Kohath (1 Chr. 26:1, 4). Therefore, he was qualified to become the caretaker of the ark of the covenant.

God's Promise to David

17 Now it*came*to*pass, as David sat in his house, that David said to Nathan the prophet, Lo, I dwell in a house of cedars, but the ark of the covenant of the LORD remaineth under curtains.

2 Then Nathan said unto David, Do all that is in thine heart; for God is with thee.

3 And it*came*to*pass the same night, that the word of God came to Nathan, saying,

4 Go and tell David my servant, Thus saith the LORD, Thou shalt not build me a house to dwell in:

5 For I have not dwelt in a house since the day that I brought up Israel unto this day; but have gone from tent to tent, and from*one*tabernacle to another.

17:4 God did not allow David to build the temple because he was a man of warfare (1 Chr. 22:8; 28:3), but he was allowed to accumulate a large part of the materials needed for its construction (1 Chr. 22:2–4, 14–16) in anticipation of his son Solomon being able to accomplish the task. Solomon was approved by God because he would be "a man of rest" (1 Chr. 22:9).

David's Military Success

18 Now after this it*came*to*pass, that David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, and took Gath and her towns out*of*the*hand of the Philistines.

2 And he smote Moab; and the Moabites became David's servants, and brought gifts.

3 And David smote Hadarezer king of Zobah unto Hamath, as he went to establish his dominion by the river Euphrates.

4 And David took from him a thousand chariots, and seven thousand horsemen, and twenty thousand footmen: David also hamstrung all the chariot horses, but reserved of them a hundred chariots.

5 And when the Syrians of Damascus came to help Hadarezer king of Zobah, David slew of the Syrians two and twenty thousand men.

6 Then David put garrisons in Syria-damascus; and the Syrians became David's servants, and brought gifts. Thus the LORD preserved David whithersoever he went.

7 And David took the shields of gold that were on the servants of Hadarezer, and brought them to Jerusalem.

8 Likewise from Tibhath, and from Chun, cities of Hadarezer, brought David very much brass, wherewith Solomon made the brazen sea, and the pillars, and the vessels of brass.

9 Now when Tou king of Hamath heard how David had smitten all the host of Hadarezer king of Zobah;

10 He sent Hadoram his son to king David, to inquire of his welfare, and to congratulate him, because he had fought against Hadarezer, and smitten him; (for Hadarezer had war with Tou;) and with him all manner of vessels of gold and silver and brass.

11 Them also king David dedicated unto the LORD, with the silver and the gold that he brought from all these nations; from Edom, and from Moab, and from*the*children of Ammon, and from*the*Philistines, and from Amalek.

12 Moreover Abishai the son of Zeruiah slew of the Edomites in the valley of salt eighteen thousand.

13 And he put garrisons in Edom; and all the Edomites became David's servants. Thus the LORD preserved David whithersoever he went.

David's Officials

14 So David reigned over all Israel, and executed judgment and justice among all his people.

15 And Joab the son of Zeruiah was over the host; and Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud, recorder.

16 And Zadok the son of Ahitub, and Abimelech the son of Abiathar, were the priests; and Shavsha was scribe;

20:3 The proper understanding of the wording of this verse is that, rather than mutilating the Ammonites, David forced them into slave labor in the fields and on the building projects (see 2 Samuel 12:31). In this verse, the translators of the KJV have interpreted the Hebrew verb yāsar, the third person singular form of sūr (7787), "to saw or cut," as referring to King David. The Hebrew word translated "people" ('ām [5971]) in this verse is actually a collective noun, which would require the third person singular form of the verb. Thus, a more feasible translation of this verse would be "And he brought out the people that were in it, and they cut with saws, and with harrows of iron, and with axes. . . ."

26:1 From 1 Chronicles 9:19 it appears that the full spelling of Kore's father's name was "Ebiasaph." The man named Asaph mentioned here should not be confused with the psalmist who had the same name who was a member of the clan of Gershon because Korah and his descendants, who guarded the temple gates, belonged to the clan of Kohath.

26:4 Obed-edom was the Levite who had received God's blessing when he maintained the ark of the covenant after the death of Uzza (1 Chr. 13:13, 14; 15:24, 25; 16:38).

gladness. And they made Solomon the son of David king the second time, and anointed him unto the LORD to be the chief governor, and Zadok to be priest.

23 Then Solomon sat on the throne of the LORD as king instead of David his father, and prospered; and all Israel obeyed him.

24 And all the princes, and the mighty men, and all the sons likewise of king David, submitted themselves unto Solomon the king.

25 And the LORD magnified Solomon exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and bestowed upon him such royal majesty as had not been on any king before him in Israel.

David's Death

26 Thus David the son of Jesse reigned over all Israel.

27 And the time that he reigned over Israel was forty years; seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty and three years reigned he in Jerusalem.

28 And he died in a good*old*age, full of days, riches, and honor: and Solomon his son reigned in*his*stead.

29 Now the acts of David the king, first and last, behold, they are written in the book of Samuel the seer, and in the book of Nathan the prophet, and in the book of Gad the seer, 30 With all his reign and his might, and the times that went over him, and over Israel, and over all the kingdoms of the countries.

29:29 Most likely, these were ancient writings, perhaps similar to Jasher's works (Josh. 10:13; 2 Sam. 1:18), which were available to Ezra, but which have since been lost. It is assumed that many true prophets of God have written books which had parts incorporated into Scripture, but whose names are not given. This reference illustrates what is called the "prophetic succession;" there were always prophets inspired of God recording the information that God intended to incorporate into His Scriptures. The Hebrew Scriptures allow for this by calling all the books from Joshua to Second Kings the "former prophets."

The Second Book of

CHRONICLES

The Book of Second Chronicles was originally included with First Chronicles. Ezra, the generally accepted author for the book (see the introduction to 1 Chr.), restates the history of Israel and Judah as it related to their spiritual condition. The events recorded in this book parallel those of First and Second Kings, but the attention is mainly focused on Solomon and the kings of Judah. The kings of Israel are mentioned only when they have some impact on the events or people in Judah. The major periods of revival in Judah are covered in greater detail. These revivals came under the reigns of Asa (chaps. 14—16), Jehoshaphat (chaps. 17—20), Joash (chaps. 23; 24), Hezekiah (chaps. 29—32), and Josiah (chaps. 34; 35).

It is important to remember that during those days many prophets were actively attacking the ritualistic approach to observing the Law. They called this formalism "idolatry in disguise." The revivals that did take place never lasted long because those kings who were right with God raised children who became idolators (e.g., Hezekiah and Manasseh).

6:14–42 This prayer of Solomon is one of the most beautiful in all of Scripture. It revealed Solomon's great familiarity and reverence for the warnings of God which were given to all Israel through Moses (Lev. 26; Deut. 28).

6:16 Solomon seemed to be conscious of God's condition in the promise that He gave to David (see 1 Kgs. 2:4; 6:12, 13, cf. Ex. 32:13; Num. 14:18; Neh. 1:8, 9; Dan. 9:13).

13:5 Eating salt together signified an unbreakable friendship. Salt was used as a preservative. Therefore, it was an appropriate symbol for eternity. A covenant of salt could not be changed (see Num. 18:19).

22:5 Jehoram, or the shorter spelling, Joram, is the name of two separate individuals, one of which ruled over the kingdom of Israel and the other over Judah. To make the matter even more confusing, these two men were in power during the same time. While the name Joram is almost always applied to the king of Israel (2 Kgs. 8:21, 23, 24, 28; 9:14–17, 21–23, 29; 2 Chr. 22:5, 7), he is referred to as Jehoram in 2 Kings 3:1, 6; 9:24, and in 2 Chronicles 22:5, 7 both spellings are used. The king of Judah is normally referred to as Jehoram (1 Kgs. 22:50; 2 Kgs. 12:18; 2 Chr. 21:1, 3–5, 9, 16; 22:1, 11), though on two occasions he is called Joram (2 Kgs. 11:2; 1 Chr. 3:11). In addition, there are a number of references in which both kings are mentioned (2 Kgs. 1:17 [both are called Jehoram]; 8:16, 25, 29; 2 Chr. 22:6 [Joram is king of Israel and Jehoram is king of Judah]).

31:4 The priests and the Levites depended on the gifts of the people for their livelihood (Num. 18:12, 21, 24). 32:20–23 This is a practical example of how "righteousness exalteth a nation" (Prov. 14:34).
32:24 The "sign" which was given to Hezekiah refers to the shadow on the sundial going backward ten degrees (see 2 Kgs. 20:8–11; Is. 38:7, 8).

32:30 See the note on 2 Kings 20:20 concerning the pool of Siloam.

32:32, 33 This passage may suggest that Isaiah wrote portions of Second Kings. Another possibility is that this refers to two different sources, Isaiah itself (chaps. 36–39) and the Book of Second Kings. In 2 Kings 20:20, 21, there is a reference to the Book of Chronicles, which must have been added to the canon of Scripture later. The "book of the kings" may possibly refer to another chronicle which has been lost.

34:19 Some suggest that this book given to Josiah was only the Book of Deuteronomy, but others contend that the text (v. 14) indicates that it was the whole Pentateuch (the first five books of the Old Testament). The latter is more accepted because the blessings and curses (Lev. 26 and Deut. 28), as well as the promises in Deuteronomy chapters twenty–nine and thirty, were instrumental in beginning Josiah's revival.

34:25 The phrase "works of their hands" is typical of language of contempt used to refer to idol making and worship (Deut. 4:28; 2 Chr. 32:19; Is. 40:18–21; 44:9–21; Dan. 5:23).

Josiah Celebrates the Passover

35 Moreover Josiah (nn2977) kept (wcs,qmf6213) a passover (nn6453) unto the LORD (pp,nn3068) in Jerusalem (pp,nn3389): and they killed (wcs,qmf7819) the passover (df,nn6453) on the fourteenth (pp,nu702/nu6240) day of the first (df,aj7223) month (dfp,nn2320).

2 And he set (wcs,himf5975) the priests (df,pl,nn3548) in their charges (pr5921), and encouraged (pl,nn,pnx4931) them to the service (pp,cs,nn5656) of the house (cs,nn1004) of the LORD (nn3068),

3 And said (wcs,qmf559) unto the Levites (pp,pl,nn3881) that taught (df,pl,hipt4000) all (pp,cs,nn3605) Israel (nn3478), which were holy (df,aj6918) unto the LORD (pp,nn3068), Put (qmv5414) (853) the holy (df,nn6944) ark (cs,nn727) in the house (dfp,nn1004) which Solomon (pnl834) the son (nn8010) of David (cs,nn1121) king (nn1732) of Israel (cs,nn4428) did build (nn3478); it shall not (qpf1129) be a burden (ptn369/pp,pnx) upon your shoulders (nn4853): serve now (ad6258) (853) the LORD (nn3068) your God (pl,nn,pnx430), and (wcj(853)) his people (nn,pnx5971) Israel (nn3478),

4 And prepare (wcj,himv3559) yourselves by the houses (pp,cs,nn1004) of your fathers (pl,nn,pnx1), after your courses (pp,pl,nn,pnx4256), according to the writing (pp,nn3791) of David (nn1732) king (cs,nn4428) of Israel (nn3478), and according to the writing (wcj,pp,cs,nn4385) of Solomon (nn8010) his son (nn,pnx1121).

7 And Josiah (nn2977) gave (wcs,himf7311) to the people (pp,pl,cs,nn1121/df,nn5971), of the flock (nn6629), lambs (pl,nn3532) and kids (wcj,pl,cs,nn1121/pl,nn5795), all (df,nn3605) for the passover offerings (dfp,pl,nn6453), for all (pp,cs,nn3605) that were present (df,nipt4672), to the number (pp,cs,nn4557) of thirty thousand (nu7970), and three thousand (nu505 cs,nu7969) bullocks (pl,nu505): these (wcj,nn1241) were of the king's substance (pndm428 pr4480/nn7399).

8 And his princes (df,nn4428) gave (wcj,pl,nn,pnx8269) willingly (hipf7311) unto the people (pp,nn5071), to the priests (dfp,nn5971), and to the Levites (dfp,pl,nn3548): Hilkiah (wcj,pp,pl,nn3881) and Zechariah (nn2518) and Jehiel (wcj,nn2148), rulers (wcj,nn3171) of the house (pl,cs,nn5057) of God (cs,nn1004), gave (df,pl,nn430) unto (qpf5414)

35:3 No mention is made of the ark after this order from Josiah that it be restored to the temple. It may have been carried away by King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon along with the other sacred articles, when he plundered the temple in Jerusalem. Since no reference is made to the ark in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah, or even the writings of Josephus regarding the Babylonian Captivity, it is believed that there was no ark in the second temple and that the Holy of Holies stood empty. There is a Jewish tradition that, before Nebuchadnezzar plundered the temple, the priests hid the ark and its hiding place will be revealed by the Messiah at His coming. His knowledge of it will, they declare, be proof of His claims.

reason, he was not carried back to Babylon (Dan. 1:2). Some suggest that when Nebuchadnezzar's father died suddenly, Nebuchadnezzar was in such a hurry to return to Babylon and assume the throne of his father that he allowed Jehoiakim to remain king. Three years later, Jehoiakim rebelled against Nebuchadnezzar. Before Nebuchadnezzar could respond, God sent groups of the Chaldeans, Syrians, Moabites, and Ammonites to fight against Judah and Jehoiakim was killed (2 Kgs. 24:1–5; Jer. 36:30, 31).

36:10 Zedekiah was actually Jehoiachin's uncle (2 Kgs. 24:17). The word "brother" was used by the Hebrews to refer to any person of blood relation.

This was the second of three deportations to Babylon. At this time (597 B.C.) Ezekiel was led away into exile. Daniel had been taken in the first deportation which occurred in 605 B.C. The last of the exiles were carried away after the destruction of the city of Jerusalem in approximately 586 B.C.

36:21 Jeremiah stated that the reason for the Babylonian Captivity was the people's stubborn refusal to obey the word of the Lord (Jer. 25:1–11). The length of the period of punishment was chosen by God to highlight Israel's disobedience in not keeping the sabbatical years. This was only one of the many sins of the people, but the penalty was a tangible lesson from the Lord which was important for them to learn. The application for the believer is clear—if one refuses to do what God wants, He has ways of achieving His purposes anyway, though there may be suffering in the process.

EZRA

The books of Ezra and Nehemiah were originally one volume. The Vulgate (a Latin translation of the Scripture) was the first edition of the Bible to separate them, but at that time they were designated as First and Second Ezra (see the introduction to Nehemiah). Like the Book of Daniel, portions of Ezra were also written in Aramaic, the language of Babylon (Ezra 4:8—6:18; 7:12–26).

The Book of Ezra recounts the efforts of the exiles who returned from Babylon to rebuild the temple. Under the leadership of Jeshua, the high priest, and Zerubbabel, the governor over the region, proper worship and the ceremonies associated with it were restored in Jerusalem. Many years later, Ezra arrived in Jerusalem with another group of exiles. Ezra was a very knowledgeable and adept scribe who was commissioned by King Artaxerxes to teach the statutes of the Mosaic Law to the people in Israel.

While there may have been many groups of exiles that returned to Jerusalem from Babylon, Scripture speaks of only three. The first group returned in 536 B.C. under the leadership of Zerubabbel, the second in 457 B.C. under Ezra, and the third in 444 B.C. under Nehemiah. The Book of Ezra tells of the first two groups of exiles. Long periods of time are passed by without mention, however, because only those facts that are relevant to the religious life of Israel are given. Despite the fact that all those who desired to return to Jerusalem were free to do so, a great number of Jews chose to remain in Babylon. As a result, Babylon became an important center for Jewish learning until the city's decline near the end of the fourth century B.C.

The prophets Zechariah and Haggai were contemporary with Zerubbabel, and Esther lived not many years later. An excellent understanding of the life of the Jews after the Exile can be gained by collectively studying the books of these individuals along with Ezra and Nehemiah.

1:8 "Sheshbazzar" is thought to be the Chaldean name of Zerubbabel. Sheshbazzar means "joy in affliction," while Zerubbabel means "stranger in Babylon." Since Zerubbabel was the grandson of Jehoiachin (see 1 Chr. 3:17–19; Ezra 3:2), who was popular in Babylon, it is quite possible that he was the one to whom the treasures of the temple were entrusted. Other scholars speculate that Sheshbazzar was the officially appointed leader of the group returning to Jerusalem, and Zerubbabel was the unofficial, popular leader. Still others have identified Sheshbazzar with Shenazzar of 1 Chronicles 3:18.

6:15 The time between the destruction of the temple (586 B.C.) and the date that the rebuilding was finished (the early part of 515 B.C.), being rounded off to the nearest year (516 B.C.) gives a total of seventy years. This was the fulfillment of the prophecy of Jeremiah concerning how long Israel would be in captivity (Jer. 25:11).

6:16 Herod the Great (see Matt. 2:1–19) enlarged and beautified this temple, but it was destroyed by the Romans in A.D. 70. This temple was smaller and less ornate than Solomon's Temple, but God promised that the glory which would eventually fill it would be greater (Hag. 2:6–9).

NEHEMIAH

The books of Ezra and Nehemiah were originally one volume, but Jerome (ca. A.D. 342–420) split them into First and Second Ezra in the Vulgate (a Latin translation of the Bible). Not long afterward, the second portion was named "Nehemiah" after its principal character. The name Nehemiah means "Jehovah comforts."

Nehemiah was concerned that the Lord's name was not being esteemed as it should have been because His city, Jerusalem, was in ruins. The people who had returned had no way to defend themselves (Neh. 1:3). As a result, Nehemiah desired to undertake the formidable task of reestablishing civil authority in Jerusalem. He let nothing distract him from his goal of making Jerusalem a strategic center of refuge for the remnant of the Israelites that lived in the region (Neh. 6:3). Nehemiah was appointed governor of Judea by the Persian emperor and soon afterward came to Jerusalem (445 B.C.). In addition, he was given a military escort and government funding from Artaxerxes to aid him in repairing the city. With God's help, he planned and supervised the rebuilding of the wall around Jerusalem. Letters written on papyri (ancient paper) have been discovered in Egypt on the island of Elephantini in the Nile River which confirm that Sanballat, the man that led the opposition against Nehemiah, lived during Nehemiah's time. The description that is recorded in them of the overall political situation also coincides with the account here in Nehemiah.

This book beautifully demonstrates the fact that the Lord will sometimes use men who do not acknowledge Him as the one true God to accomplish His purpose. Nehemiah served under a heathen king, but God touched the heart of Artaxerxes so that he was willing to supply Nehemiah with the means to rebuild Jerusalem. This is true of other biblical characters such as Ezra, Esther, and Daniel who served under heathen kings.

2:10 Sanballat was a Horonite, indicating he was either from Beth-horon in Ephraim or from Horonaim. The Elephantine papyri refer to him as governor of Samaria. His opposition to Nehemiah was therefore politically motivated – the rebuilding of Jerusalem would eliminate Samaria as the political center of Judea. Tobiah, called an Ammonite, probably governed the area east of Judea. He was either a subordinate of Sanballat or in close cooperation with him.

8:8 Some of the people no longer understood Hebrew well because they had spoken only Aramaic in Babylon. This verse seems to refer to an extemporaneous translation of the book of the Law into Aramaic by Ezra, perhaps with additional comments so that the people could understand. Written translations into Aramaic were made later (which also included commentary) and were called Targums.

ESTHER

The Book of Esther was the last of five books in a collection known as the Five Megilloth (scrolls). Each book was designated to be read publicly at one of the five major feasts of the Jews. For the sake of convenience, all the books were placed on one scroll. The other four books were the Song of Solomon, Ruth, Lamentations, and Ecclesiastes. Esther was read at the Feast of Purim, the commemoration of the great deliverance of the Jews that God brought about through Esther.

There are those that question whether the Book of Esther should be included in the canon of Scripture. They try to justify their position mainly by stressing that the name of God is never mentioned in the book. This should not be a reason for concern, however, since the main theme of the book is clearly the providence of God and His care for His people. The mighty Ahasuerus (or Xerxes) was never beyond the control of God, and it was impossible for Haman to carry out his dreadful intentions while God was protecting His people.

The plan that Haman had set into action threatened to annihilate all of the Jewish people, since virtually all of the Jews lived within the realm of the Persian Empire, which extended from India to Ethiopia. The fact that Esther asked the Jews residing in the capital city to fast demonstrates that she was relying on the grace of God to resolve the desperate situation.

The events of this book took place about thirty years prior to the return of exiles under Ezra (457 B.C.) and Nehemiah (444 B.C.). Many have suggested that their successes would not have been possible had not Esther, Mordecai, and Daniel paved the way with their conduct and accomplishments.

15 What shall we do unto the queen Vashti according to law, because she hath not performed the commandment of the king Ahasuerus by the 16 And Memucan answered before the king and the princes, Vashti the queen hath not done wrong to the king only, but also to all the princes, and to all the people that are in all the provinces of the king Ahasuerus.

17 For this deed of the queen shall come abroad unto all women, so that they shall despise their husbands in their eyes, when it shall be reported, The king Ahasuerus commanded Vashti the queen to be brought in before him, but she came not.
18 Likewise shall the ladies of Persia and Media say this day unto all the king's princes, which have heard of the deed of the queen. Thus shall there arise too much contempt and wrath.
19 If it please the king, let there go a royal commandment from him, and let it be written among the laws of the Persians and the Medes, that it be not altered, That Vashti come no more before king Ahasuerus; and let the king give her royal estate unto another that is better than she.
20 And when the king's decree which he shall make shall be published their husbands honor, both*to*great and small.

21 And the saying pleased the king and the princes; and the king did according to the word of Memucan:
